

Reflections of the Elementary MMUN student participants:

1. No matter how old you are, you can still make a change.
2. The fear that I did overcome was that I spoke with more delegates this year.
3. I learned that there are countries in need.
4. I learned that if you want to be heard you have to speak up.
5. You can't just expect things to happen, if you really want them to happen you have to be the one who makes them happen.
6. You need to be grateful for what you have because other people in America and around the world don't even know where or when they are getting their next meal.
7. I learned that I have to be grateful for my family because there are so many children around the world who don't have parents and so we also need to be grateful for everything we have.
8. I mostly enjoyed meeting people from different countries and learning about their cultures.
9. I enjoyed working on resolutions and finding out different countries' stances on problems.
10. I learned that you do not need to be scared to make a speech.
11. I learned that you will make mistakes, but you will get over it.
12. I learned that no matter how difficult it may become, the more you listen to other peoples' speeches and comments, the easier it is to write resolution.
13. Eucalyptus or garlic can repel mosquitoes naturally and that can help prevent malaria.
14. I thought the meetings were awesome.
15. I learned I can overcome my fear and speak in front of a lot of people.
16. It is not always good to share your ideas with just anyone, someone might take advantage of what you thought of.
17. I learned a lot about access to water resources and sustainable energy.
18. I learned to be thankful for what I have.
19. I loved getting to be in the actual General Assembly room.
20. On the last day I worked up the courage to speak in front of everyone. So, I learned that holding in my fears is worse than facing them.
21. Before you give anyone your ideas, think first. I gave my ideas to a resolution and did not get any credit for it.
22. I did not participate during the beginning because I was nervous. When I realized everyone was nervous I started to participate.
23. I liked meeting new people and making new friends.
